

Notes on contributors

|                              |   |
|------------------------------|---|
| 著者 (英)                       | English Literary Society of Doshisha University   |
| journal or publication title | Doshisha literature   |
| number                       | 44  |
| page range                   | 59-59   |
| year                         | 2001-03-10  |
| 権利 (英)                       | English Literary Society of Doshisha University   |
| URL                          | http://doi.org/10.14988/pa.2017.0000014823 |

NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

AKIKO NII received her B. A. (1994) in English from Hokkaido University and M. A. (1997) in English from Doshisha University. Her main interest lies in Medieval Arthurian literature, especially in the Gawain-romances. She is currently a doctoral candidate at Doshisha University.

MAKI OKUMURA is a doctoral candidate at Doshisha University. She received her B. A. (1997) and M. A. (1999) in English from Doshisha University. Her main interest lies in the nineteenth-century British women writers. She is currently studying the Brontës.

ATSUSHI YUHAKU received his M. A. (1997) in English from Doshisha University. He is a doctoral candidate at Doshisha University and part-time instructor of English at Hanazono University. His main interest lies in language acquisition studies, including both first and second language acquisition.